AUBURN TIGERS (11-2-0) - Tigers fans are ambivalent about their team this year. On the positive side, they won eleven games and beat their in-state archrival Alabama in the process. Along the way, they defeated the eventual National Champions. Their defense produced two shutouts and held opponents to a touchdown or less on two other occasions. If that weren't enough to be proud of, they went to a big time Bowl game and won. Then why aren't the fans who inhabit Jordan-Hare stadium smiling? Could be because their defense against the rush is leakier than a Louisiana dike. Alabama state DOT officials are considering reclassifying the field as a state highway. To make matters worse, both of Auburn's losses were at home and to teams they should have beaten. It's things like this that turn a normally mild mannered Auburn alumni into a Screamin' War Eagle.
